Frantz Clarke, YouthBuild Boston volunteer, of Brighton, Mike Norton, Bank of America volunteer, of Medfield, and Alice Green, YouthBuild volunteer, of Dorchester worked with Bank of America to make $17,000 in repairs to 79-year-old Helen Gifford's home in Dorchester on Friday, April 7. The extensive home repairs, which were completed at no cost to the homeowner, were done to celebrate a new partnership between two non-profit organizations, Rebuilding Together Boston (RTB) and YouthBuild site Boston (YBS).

RTB and YBB joined dozens of Bank of America volunteers and installed 15 new windows and new lighting, painted the interior and exterior of the house, weather stripped the exterior of the doors and performed landscaping work.

"Bank of America is proud to support these vital non-profits with volunteers," said Brian Moynihan, president, Global Wealth & Investment Management, Bank of America.

"With this new partnership, Rebuilding Together Boston will identify homes in Boston to revitalize at no cost to the owners with the help of the skilled workers from the YouthBuild Boston program."

The partnership will help low-income and elderly homeowners preserve and improve their homes and improve the quality of lives for their recipients.

Bank of America is one of the world's largest financial institutions, serving individual consumers, small and middle market businesses and large corporations with a full range of banking, investing, asset management and other financial and risk-management products and services.
